

I think it is a shame that the FCC is lifting regulations that will allow a single (or even just a few) communications powerhouses to control the public airwaves. These airwaves are for the people, and the homogenization of them should be stopped. It is bad enough with Clear Channel owning most of the radio stations in most of the cities across America. Individuality and diversity on radio has become a thing of the past. It needs to be known that this is no small deregulation. It could forever change the way we listen to radio- our source of music, news, and entertainment. As Mr. Mike Mills has said, "I OPPOSE this ruling which will lift restrictions on media cross-ownership and allow greater concentration of media, threatening the free and independent press that is the lifeblood of democracy."

Please let it be known that this ruling is being strongly opposed.
